Sasquatchulookinat?

Out of the Forest. Into the Jungle.

After his forest home is bulldozed to make room for another coffee shop, Gerry -- a fun-loving and insatiably curious Sasquatch -- struggles to live among humans as he strives to become a stand-up comic.

Yes, Gerry is a bigfoot. But he's more than a giant hairball. He's Alf with more attitude, Mork with more class, Balki with more edge.

Filmed as a single-camera mockumentary, this sitcom features Gerry's daily run-ins with humans and their many, many social rules, which his equally awkward friend Ron films for a self-produced, extremely low-budget documentary.

Everybody Loves Bigfoot!

- "Hahaha! I like the urban Sasquatch!"
- "Funny idea. Sasquatches are always funny!"
- "Can't watch enough 'quatch"
- "I totally get Gerry, and his desire to fit in and not eat Hipsters for breakfast... Don't change Gerry, and don't shave for anyone!"
- "We need more Canadian wild life on TV."
- "I do not understand this show."
