THE SYNOPSIS

Set in the present day wilderness of New Brunswick, Canada, Fred and Carl are Park Rangers is a half hour of in your face comedy about two co-workers with nothing in common, other than sharing the same Ranger Station.

North Lake Provincial Park is located near the source of the Chiputneticook Lake System on the western border of New Brunswick, and 29 year old Fred Leane is its guardian, serving as a park ranger for the Department of Environment and Resources. Fred is a sensitive and organized young man, and for the past two years he has been looking after the park his way, maintaining the peace and keeping everything litterbug and hooligan free.

However, Fred's world is turned upside down when the government hires Carl Porter as his new partner. Carl is the loud, rude, often offensive and always inappropriate son of the Minister of the Environment and Resources for the province of New Brunswick. A swirling vortex of chaos and destruction, Carl is a flailing mastodon in the china shop of nature. And it is Fred's job to train him.

One Half Hour. Ten Million Trees. Two Park Rangers.
